Here we go over the edge again (revised)

I can see were the confusion about NSN scripting being relicensed/not credited is coming from. The guy that developed it with/for NSN is properly documented. They have his, Paladin's, first version of NSN Groups. When I took over full development of it, version 1.0.1, the headers credits changed. Not every one remembers back that far that it was developed with/for NSN by Paladin and therefore his name appeared in the original files. We are talking back in the 5.5/5.6 days of nuke.
